3. Reasons for the Revisions to the Forecast Business Results

Demand remained strong for our video game software storage LSIs (custom memories), the main products of our customer-specific LSI (application-specific integrated circuits (ASIC)) business. Also, high-value-added products in our application-specific LSI (application specific standard product (ASSP)) business and Systems Business contributed to an increase in sales. As a result, MegaChips forecasts that its consolidated and non-consolidated net sales, operating income and ordinary profit for the interim period will considerably exceed the previous forecasts and, for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2009, will achieve a record-setting performance.

In our Systems Business, we discontinued the unprofitable MegaChips brand products, which targeted large unspecified customers, so that we can focus on customer-specific systems. These products will account for approximately 580 million yen in losses due to the liquidation of the business, indicated as a special loss, in the second quarter of this fiscal year. We are committed to focusing our corporate resources on our strong customer-specific business as well as our electronic component business, including system LSIs, which are our source of competitiveness, and their applications to boards and modules.

- Note on our business forecasts

Our business forecasts given in this announcement are based on the information available and a number of reasonable assumptions, as of October 21, 2008. The actual performance may differ significantly from the forecasts due to various factors that may prevail in the coming months.
